Students will follow a nine-period day with a mix of synchronous (live) and asynchronous (on demand) learning experiences. All academic supports will be available to students including special education, English-language, and other interventions.

Blue or white schedules will determine which subjects have live learning.

Blue schedule (Monday, Wednesday, every other Friday)

Science, physical education, and English language arts teachers will provide live synchronous learning during the time the student would typically be in class.

The teachers in the other subjects will provide assignments or activities to be completed that day. Teachers in the other subjects will be available during that time to assist students or meet in small groups.

White schedule (Tuesday, Thursday, every other Friday)

Math, social studies, exploratory classes, foreign language, and ACE will provide synchronous learning during the time the student would typically be in class.

The student's other subjects will provide assignments or activities to be completed that day. Again, teachers in those other subjects will be available to assist students or meet in small groups.
